

SECTION III

PUBLICATION ORDERING INFORMATION VIA LIBRARY OR ON-LINE SERVICES

The following publications are not available through HRSA clearing-houses, bureaus or offices, but via library or on-line services. They include: miscellaneous peer-reviewed articles, book chapters, invited papers, editorials, commentaries, etc.

Library loan is the simplest ordering method for the general public. It may be less expensive than other services and may take up to two weeks. It is especially valuable if you have no on-line access to Grateful Med, Internet user-friendly software for searching National Library of Medicine (NLM) databases.

If your local public, university or other library does not possess the publication you are interested in, they can access it for you via an interlibrary loan. For a variable charge, the library will obtain a hard copy of the actual publication (not a reprint) by mail. You will then be notified when the publication is available for pick up at the library. Rush is available at an additional cost.

On-line ordering of publications—via Grateful Med on the Internet—is available for those with computer access and a credit card. You simply follow the prompts on the screen to order publications from major libraries such as NLM at the National Institutes of Health. Charges may vary; the publication will be sent to you directly by mail, usually within two weeks. Rush service is available at no extra charge for clinical emergencies.
